DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoshida et al. (6,255,201).

With respect to claim 1, Yoshida et al. disclose (a) forming a first impurity layer (2) by introducing first impurities which impart a first conductivity type to a semiconductor, into said semiconductor; and (b) irradiating a coherent light onto said semiconductor under said first impurity layer, wherein said coherent light has a wavelength at which multi-phonon lattice absorption of said semiconductor occurs (Col. 6, lines 48-57).

With respect to claim 6, Yoshida et al. disclose wherein said step (a) includes forming a second impurity layer (4) by introducing second impurities which impart a second conductivity type different from said first conductivity type to said semiconductor, into said semiconductor, and introducing said first impurities into said second impurity layer to form said first impurity layer.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshida et al. as applied to claims 1 and 6 above, and further in view of the following comments.

With respect to claim 7, Yoshida et al. disclose forming an impurity layer (4) by introducing impurities into a surface of a silicon layer having a first conductivity type, said impurities imparting a second conductivity type opposite to said first conductivity type to said silicon layer; and irradiating a first laser light having a wavelength of 9-11 μm . Yoshida et al. disclose that a light having a wavelength based on this process may be used depending upon the compositions. Yoshida et al. discloses the claimed invention except for a wavelength in a range of 16 to 17 μm . It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a larger wavelength, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

In addition, the selection of a laser wavelength, its obvious because it is a matter of determining optimum process conditions by routine experimentation with a limited number of species of result effective variables. These claims are prima facie obvious without showing that the claimed ranges achieve unexpected results relative to the prior art range. In re Woodruff, 16 USPQ2d 1935, 1937 (Fed. Cir. 1990). See also In re Huang, 40 USPQ2d 1685, 1688 (Fed. Cir. 1996)(claimed ranges or a result effective variable, which do not overlap the prior art ranges, are unpatentable unless they produce a new and unexpected result which is different in kind and not merely in degree from the results of the prior art). See also In re Boesch, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA) (discovery of optimum value of result effective variable in known process is ordinarily within skill or art) and In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233 (CCPA 1995) (selection of optimum ranges within prior art general conditions is obvious).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-5 and 8-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
